By examining the official list published in your paper, it will be found that more lieutenants have been retired and dropped than in any two grades put together;

yet this was the lowest grade represented. It must be ever borne in mind that the leave-of-absence list is an honorable one, and that the furlough list is but second to it. In the list of captains retired on leave of absence will be found the name of Commodore Charles Stewart, the captor of the Cyane and Levant; and in the same list, of lieutenants, Lieut. M. F. Maury, the Superintendent of the National Observatory, and author of the celebrated wind and current charts. Old age and long experience have unfitted the Commodore for future labor, and a grateful country permits him to rest upon his oars, with an income from government of twentyfive hundred a year. Lieutenant Maury enjoys a salary of three thousand a year, by special act of Congress, as Superintendent of the Observatory; an accident from the overturning of a stage-coach has, I believe, precluded the possibility of his going to sea, while his tastes are evidently more for the scientific public. Subjoined we give a correct list of the membranches of his profession. Mr. Maury also had a bers of that body, the class to which they belong, connexion on the board-Lieut. William L. Maury.

83- Some people will make Judies of themselves if the slightest opportunity be offered, and for want of been the case ;—that since the advent of the New Oran offered opportunity they will labor very hard to der, all outside of its precints have also been outsimake such opportunity. Mr. John F. Crampton, British Minister at Washington, is one of the class referred to. He has recently exhibited a genius, an aptitude, a natural facility for Judyism deserving of our notice, and challenging our admiration. Not content with acting in an ungentlemanly and undiplomatic manner in regard to the attempt to enlist within the jurisdiction of the United States recruits for the Foreign Legion in British pay, for which, if one half the facts be reliable as sworn to, he ought to be driven, not only from his position of Ambassador, but from the country itself, he now with the most unblushing effrontery turns accuser and calls the attention of the Cabinet of Washington to some pretended movements of some Irish Emigrant Society aiming to revolutionize Ireland, and so on; all of which is "my eye and Elizabeth Martin." These little spurts amount to nothing, and he knows it, and, but for his asastonishing insolence, he would know that he has no right to say a word on the subject, predicating what he does say upon a pretended discovery of a pretended secret circular. It might do very well for the believe, to violate the sanctity of the mails in England, during the troubles in 1848-'9, for the purpose of finding out, by the letters of Republican chiefs in England to the actors on the continent, the plans and expectations of the patriots, which the "Right Honorable" Sir James than betrayed to the banded despots; but Mr. Crampton must not expect the government of the United States to allow of anything of the kind, or take cognizance of information so surreptitiously obtained.

In the last number of "Household Words," by Dickens, there is an article headed "A Tight Little Island," the tight little Island alluded to being Heligoland, a mere rock in the North Sea, forming the apex of a triangle, of which a line drawn between the mouths of the rivers Elbe and Weser forms the base. This little spot is held by England as a sort of sentry at the door of its neighbors, the German States, and is used as a depot for recruits from these States, although the laws of them all are directly opposed to the enrollment of their citizens in any such manner. It is a centre for illegality-for evasion of the municipal laws of the Continental States -a continued insult to them-a continued beacon for all violators of their laws and policy; and the writer in "Household Words" rejoices over the acuteness that plans so nice an arrangement. And yet the agents of Ergland, and one of the most deeply implicated of them, assumes to talk to the United States. Prince Murat.

Joachim Murat married Napoleon's sister. Lucien Murat is Joachim Murat's son, consequently Napoleon's nephew and cousin to Louis Napoleon. As everybody knows, Murat, the elder, was made King of Naples by his august brother-in-law, to whom, in which have contributed so much to the growth and prosperity his fall, he proved untrue. Murat was deposed and the Bourbons restoerd. He made a wild attempt to The flags of the shipping in port, and at other points in reinstate himself, failed, and was shot in the courtyard of one of his former palaces.

Lucien Murat is a fat, roley poley, middle-aged and round-bellied man, who lived for very many row afternoon at 3 o'clock. His remains will be interred in years at or near Bordentown, N. J., in the neighborhood of the residence of his uncle, Joseph Bonaparte, ex-King of Spain, then known as Court Surveilliers.

The Philadelphia Bulletin brings forward some reminiscences of Murat, which render his rise into princehood certainly more amusing if not quite so astonishing as that of his cousin the Emperor. "Murat," as every body called him in Bordentown, had as little of the prince about him as could well be imagined. if we except a most princely contempt of all sorts of work or business, and a majestic neglect of all those little pecuniary obligations known as debts. He was generally out at the elbows, but somehow got along, while his uncle remained in this country. The departure of Joseph Bonaparte, if it did nothing else, certainly impaired the credit of Lucien Murat. # The Meeting To-Night.

A writer in the Herald of yesterday, over the signature of "A Citizen," regrets the call for a meeting which appeared originally in the Journal of Friday last. We think we know the feelings of the citizens at whose request that notice was inserted, and we believe that neither the correspondent of the Herald, nor any other person can more sincerely regret the necessity which is believed to exist for such a movement-a movement started in all honesty and sincerity for the express purpose of putting an end to a strict party government of town .-Had the former system been adhered to-had the tickets been formed of recent times as they had been for years previously, no such movement would have been necessary nor would have been resorted to. But it requires no argument to prove that such has not ders in regard to the town-without voice or weight or power or say. The movement which the meeting at the Court House is called to initiate, is not a proscriptive movement. It aims simply to proscribe proscription. To put an end, if possible to the organized interf rence of an "order," of an exclusive character recent municipal elections have been proclaimed as K. N. triumphs—the fact is notorious. Nor can it be forgotten how recently the Herald, in which this communication appeared, rejoiced over what "Sam's boys" had done on such occasions. Those citizens outside of the order simply want to break down the exclusion which the temporary ascendancy of K. N.-ism has brought about. They seek to arouse neither personal bitterness nor factious division. Among them will be found gentlemen who have heavy interests at stake-too heavy to be trifled with or sacrificed at the dictation of passion, or in obedience to the behests of faction. They seek, if possible, to put an end to both by putting an end to that system of exclusion which must inevitably re-British Postmaster General, Sir James Graham, we sult in heart-burnings and hard feelings. # The Meeting Last Night.

The official report made by the Secretaries shows what was done at the Anti-Know Nothing Meeting held last evening at the Court House. Every person present will bear witness to its numbers and respectability as well to the spirit which animated it. Gotten up quietly, without excitement or parade, on an unfavorable and threatening night, with every prospect of rain, the turn-out was highly gratifying. It augured success; and it only remains for the movement thus initiated to be followed up in the same spirit and with proper energy, to render it irresistible. It is no exclusive, proscriptive, or strictly party move. It is the reverse. It is designed to do away with all such things. It is gotten up in opposition to all such things. It invites the co-operation of all who are willing to oppose the party or order which first introduced exclusion or proscriptiveness into our town affairs. It aims at no personal attacks or personal also consumed. bitterness. It aims at establishing no permanent divisions among our citizens. Its object is to do away with such divisions by defeating the ascendancy of the party under whose auspices division lines were from Callao to Sept. 25th. # Parties--How they Stand

For years, says the Richmond Enquirer, the political skies have been lowering and stormy, and portentions of a disastrous future. Suddenly an unexpectedly the clouds have passed off, the sun has returned, and all looks cheering and hopeful. At the very moment when we feared that sectional parties would be formed, that North and South would meet in hostile array, the very opposite of all this has that under the resolution of Congress, of February, and agrarian Isms, have aroused the conservatism of the North into action. And behold, Maine and Pennsylvania are vieing with Virginia and Georgia vet appointment of Lieut. General, he is entitled to in deep utterance of their detestation and abhorrence extra pay and allowance; and that the resolution is of the common enemy. We are one people-one in language, in thought, in interest, in religion, in sentiment, in feeling. In Europe, each little Province and County has its separate language, habits, customs and manner of thoughts. Here you cannot distinguish the citizen of Boston from the citizen of New Orleans. All speak English, and speak it well. All hold nearly the same opinion as to human rights, as to religion, law, government and morality. The Isms alone form a distinct and separate class and organize themselves into a compact body. They are he party of the Opposition. The Democrats aided by the conservative Whigs of the North and of the South, and by all that is respectable and reliable, in Southern Know-Nothingism, constitute the party of the country and of the Administration. Instead, then, of sectional parties, we see arrayed against each other the destructives and the conservatives, the Infidels and the Christians, the Agrarians and the Respecters of Property, the licentious opponents of marriage and the upholders of that pure, sacred The prohibitory law has been defeated by 6,000 and holy institution. Southern correspondent of the Home Journal ends it the following interesting sketch: "During the summer of 1854, I had some busi ness transactions which called me to the county of Charlotte, in lower Virginia. A mild and lovely Sabbath morning found me seated in one of the comfortable-cushioned pews of the village church at the Court-House. As it wanted a few minutes to the hour of service, my eye wandered over the large and respectful-looking audience assembled, and was finally attracted by a very eccentric individual, who was just entering—a rather aged man, tall, of dark complexion, long white hair waving plentifully over his shoulders, and an equal venerable beard flowing on his breast. His step was active and graceful, his form erect and manly. But his peculiar actions were in striking contrast to his dignified appearance. At first I thought him only eccentric, but a few moments of further observation proved to me that he was insane.

"Immediately on entering the pew he knelt to wards the wall, crossed himself, and apparently, re. lowing notices, by D. J. Duigan, Surgeon, R. N., of lowing notices, by D. J. Duigan, Surgeon, R. His countenance assumed all kinds of expressions. Contempt, alarm, pleasure, earnestness, sorrow and anger, flitted across it in rapid succession. It reminded me more of what children call 'making faces' than anything else.

" After the services were over, I ascertained that this gentleman was no other than the nephew of John Randolph, of Roanoke. He calls himself Sir John St. George Randolph, and is sole heir to his celebrated uncle. Randolph, himself, remarked with bitterness, during his last days, that their blood flowed in the veins of but one single scion, and he was deaf. dumb and insane. So much for human greatness The subject of this sketch-although physically, and now mentally, defective-had a mind cultivated in the highest degree. In his youth he was sent to Paris, where, under the protection of a celebrated abbe, he received a thorough education. Having the capacity to receive, and the wealth to command, no pains were spared in the improvement of his intel. lectual faculties. But it was labor lost; for, on returning to his home in Virginia, he met with and loved a young lady, whom he addressed, but was refused, on account of his physical defects. On be-

> A MAN'S HAND BITTEN OFF BY A HORSE .- A SUITgical operation of a very interesting character was recently performed in England on a soldier named Thomas Dance, belonging to the 12th lancers, who had his arm amputated for the second time, in consequence of the frightful injuries he received from being bitten by a ferocious horse in the Crimea. Dance was engaged at Balaklava in drawing water for troops, and whilst so occupied saw a horse, with mane and tail erect, galloping furiously towards him. In a moment the horse seized him in his mouth, threw him down, and kneeling on his body with his fore legs, commenced tearing his clothes off, lacerating his breast and shoulder in a frightful manner. The poor fellow put out his hand to protect the lower part of his body, when the animal seized it in his mouth, and bit it off. Some of his comrades coming to his succor, armed with stout clubs, the ferocious beast was beaten off. Before, however, the horse could be secured, he bit off the finger of another man, and severely injured the shoulder of the veterinary surgeon of the regiment. He was of Arab breed. cessary to amputate the remaining portion of the arm, and he is now doing well.—Southeastern (Eng.)

Notwithstanding the present necessities of the country, the emigration to America is at a very low scale. There are two reasons for this: The war has in a measure emptied France, and even England, partly, of young men, and especially of those belonging to the working classes. The Germans, instead of crossing the sea, find it more advantageous to emigrate to neighboring countries, where their labor is wanted and well remunerated. The other reason is to be found in the American party movement, which the German papers make the best of, in order to divert the stream of emigration from the United States." CAT CONCERTS .- A writer in Putnam for October thus critizes a cat concert : "Cats, also, have their amusing, but by no means melodius concerts. Gravely and majestically sits the most vallant of beaux in the midst of an admiring circle of belles He utters a deep, solemn note; they answer in all kinds of voices, but not exactly in pure or clear accents. Louder and wilder rises the chorus, fiercer grow their passions, blows are dealt with little forbearance, and at last a row ensues, ludicrous in the extreme to the eye, but to the ear torture. Stranger still, and as yet unexplained, is their conduct when, like true topers, they get drunk from eating the root of valerian. On moonlight nights of early spring they have often been seen under the intoxicating influence of this well known poison.

They caper and shriek, they scamper and scream, they leap and kick and tumble about like genuine madmen. Hence the significative though barbarous word of the German, 'Katzenjammer,' so expressive of the dread feelings that follow a night of debauch. Unmelodious as their voices are, they differ not only with sex or age, but in every individual cat. This led some rascally courties or other to the outrageous them carefully according to musical annotation. The Probable Suspension in France and England We believe that all thoughtful financiers now re gard a suspension of specie payments by the Banks of France and England as among the strong probabil ities, which must ripen into certainty with the continuance of the war, and the latter event appears to be as nearly a fixed fact as any future event can be. The war cannot be continued two years longer without a resort to suspension, and there is no earthly reason to suppose that peace will be concluded with in that time. Of course the shrewd financiers who manage these matters at the financial centre-London-if they feel the ultimate necessity will not wait to be driven into this measure, but will adopt it in advance, and a repeal of Sir Robert Peel's Bill, restricting the issues of the Bank and establishing a certain maximum of circulation and a minimum of bullion, is looked forward to as one of the acts expected from Parliament at its next session. And at the same time it is quite probable that some action similar to that adopted under the administration and by the direction of Mr. Pitt. will be resorted to. The Bank of England, and with it, of necessity, the other Banks of the United Kingdom, will be allowed to suspend specie payments, and their bills so suspended will be be made a legal tender in payment of all debts.

Specie, thus ceasing to be the circulating medium in England and France, will become an article of commerce-a thing to be bought and sold-merchandise, in fact ; -- and, from the necessities of the real, ultimate purchasers-the governments of England and France, who must have it to carry on the war, will rise to a price above its intrinsic value. The laws of trade will, no doubt, eventually revenge themselves, and assert their inevitable supremacy: but the immediate effect must be a drain of specie from the United States, even in spite of commercial exchanges and trade balances. The European govements will pay a higher price for specie than our banks can pretend to do without bankruptcy, and they will get it, and our banks must part with it .--We must confess that, in our humble opinion, a conpayments, even in this country, a contingency very hard to avoid or avert.

The balance of trade and of exchanges may be in bids of governments willing to sacrifice nearly oneof the Peninsular war, every hundred dollars of specie that reached Wellington's army had cost one hundred and forty-six in currency. MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT .- This morning about 75 to 8 o'clock, while the omnibus belonging to Holmes' Hotel was being driven up Front street to the stable, the herses took fright at something and commenced running a little below Princess street. At the crossing of Front and Princess the omnibus received a severe jar from striking against the flags at the crossing, which rendered the horses still more unmanageable. Mr. Gabriel Holmes, who was on the box driving, appears to have been in some measure unseated at this point and could not recover himself. While attempting to restrain the horses he was thrown from his place, and would appear to have fallen on his head. One of the wheels of the vehicle passed from the Philadelphia Navy Yard, at noon on the vailing. A colored man "David," who was on the long, and a magnificent vessel. box at the same time, was thrown off nearly two squares above, but not hurt. The omnibus came in contact with a dray in the neighborhood of Front and Walnut, when it was upset and torn to pieces and the horses got loose from it. Mr. Holmes fell about one-third of a square above Princess street.

Mr. Holmes was thirty-one years 6 months and 22 days old, and had before him the prospect of a long and useful life. Few men were more popular than he and none more deservedly. Thanksgiving Day. Yesterday, being the day indicated in the proclanation of Governor Bragg, and that recommendation endorsed by our town authorities, was very generally observed by a cessation from business. In many respects the day resembled Sunday. As usual on such occasions, there was service in most, if not all, of the churches, and the attendance appears to have been general. There were the usual number of family reunions, etc.; a rather larger amount of stimulant may have been swallowed than on average days, but there was little or no intoxication observable. Upon the whole, the occasion was a pleasant one-the day was fine-the people in good humor, and inclined to express their thankfulness by a genial spirit, marking their appreciation of the blessings of Providence. We have heard of no accident occurring during the day .- Daily Journal 26th inst.

The Japanese officers got alarmed, and endeavored to stop the Commodore on his way by an invitation to a grand banquet, but our commander was not to be turned from the path of duty by the allurement of even "worms in every style," and on he went to the chief, who, after some talk, furnished all that was required. A New Know Nothing Platform.

A Know Nothing State Conclave, or Conventicle, or Council, or Convention, was held in this City last week-in which, it is stated, the following Resolutions were adopted, and over which, it is rumored. Gen. Alfred Dockery, of Richmond, presided. This Convention, it will be observed, has made new platform for the Order in this State; and it will be observed, also, that in their first Resolution the leaders assembled here have rebelled against the authority of the National Council, and violated their oaths of fidelity to it! So much for the morals of the concern-its new ptatform of principles (?) we may consider it worth while to discuss hereafter.

The rumor is, that in this Convention Mr. Rayner's popularity was not so apparent as many supposed it would be; but, on the contrary, that he was voted down, and his opinions to a considerable exconsequence sufficient not only to impress the world ence of youngsters, and others, who possess more assurance than brains. KNOW-NOTHING OATHS AND SECRECY ABANDONED IN VIRGINIA.—The know-nothings of Virginia were in State council at Lynchburg on the 19th and 20th instant. They resolved not to nominate their candidates for President and Vice President before the 1st C. & B. G. Worth. of June, 1856. From present appearances we would not be surprised if at that time it was deemed advisable to wind up the concern and go regularly into bankruptcy. The first step towards such a result was taken by the adoption of the following resolu-

A Good One.-A very good widow lady, who was looked up to by the congregation to which she be looked up to by the congregation to which she belonged as an example of piety, contrived to bring her conscience to terms for a little indulgence. She loved porter, and one day, just as she had received a half dozen bottles from the man who usually brought her dozen bottles from the man who usually brought her the comforting beverage, she, O herror, saw two graven elders of the church approaching her door. She ran the man out of the back way, and put the bottles under the bed. The weather was hot, and while conversing with her sage friends, pop went one of

"Dear me," exclaimed the good lady, "there goes that bed cord; it snapped yesterday, just the same way, I must have a new rope provided." In a few moments, pop went another, followed by

SAD EFFECTS OF SPIRITUALISM .- The Roundout Courier tells of a young man, named William Whit. dit, a "medium" in that village, who, on Sunday before last, was suddenly seized while in church with blindness, and soon after with utter loss of speech—calamity which he still endures. He lies in a condition of stupor, but without any physical diserse. The active agents of this melancholy affliction are still unconvinced of the pernicious character of the influences they set to work upon the young man. They assert that the miserable state in which he lies is a most glorious condition; that his physical senses are suspended only to make the interior illumination more brilliant, and that when he returns to the worldlife again, he will know immensely more than he ever was before aware of.
